UTMB Takes Look At Self In Mirror

A self-study of the University of Tennessee Martin Branch is being conducted by the faculty and the first one of the self-study series is under way. The purpose of the study is to take a critical look at the institution. H. B. Smith, chairman of the steering committee, said, "This study is an advisory work, taking place at U-T Knoxville, also. It should be completed by the end of the fall quarter of 1961. This study is leading up to an inspection to be made in the spring quarter of 1962 by a visiting committee from the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The steering committee has set up a number of subcommittee members, of which will actually make the study. Each subcommittee will deal with a different phase of the institution and will submit reports to the steering committee for information into the

STUDENTS NEED SELF-STUDY?

The members of our faculty are presently involved in a UTMB self-study program.

This is a university-wide project and the same thing is going at U-T Knoxville.

We suppose the purpose of such a study is to determine strong points and weak points and how improvements can be brought about.

We feel sure that this self-study will bring to the surface many strong points that we have lived with so long that they are hard for us to recognize at first glance. And also that it will make the weaknesses that are present and easy for us to see, safe on a new perspective.

If this is a university-wide project, a self-study of themselves conducted by the students might be altogether fitting and proper and also quite revealing. Now wouldn't that be something?

WANTED—PEOPLE TO VOTE

Here on this campus there are 1,012 qualified voters. Of this number, considerably less than one-half exercised their right to vote in a campus-wide election held recently for the selection of campus leaders. This means that a relatively small percentage of the student body took the trouble to drop by the polls to make a maximum of six check marks on a ballot.

This, unfortunately, does not differ greatly from the trend of voting in elections in the United States today. Approximately 41 percent of the registered voters take the time and trouble to exercise the privilege of voting in municipal elections while 62 percent voted in the recent national election.

Campus-wide voting, a pitiful situation to observe here on this campus, for this is where the training ground for democracy is supposed to begin. If we are too busy to concern ourselves with the responsibility of voting at campus elections, it is almost certain that we will be too busy to bother with voting at elections upon which the fate of our democracy rests.

We should all get off of this line of "let someone else do it." For once it would be good if each of us would take on an attitude of self-examination and consider "anything worth being done is worth my doing it."

The next time there arises a plea for voters to exercise their privilege of voting, whether it be here on this campus, an election back home, a state or national election, by all means study the ballot and VOTE.

GO, VOL CAGERS!

We wish our basketball team well when they go to Nashville February 22 to play in the Volunteer State Athletic Conference tournament.

The members of the team have done a creditable job in racking up a better than 500 record for the season. The record books especially good in view of the fact that this was supposed to be a rebuilding year and that the seniors on the squad are almost as scarce as hens' teeth.

From where we sat Saturday night, it appeared that the boys gave their all in court play in the game against Austin Peay.

The team has had exceptionally good support from the student body this year and we feel sure that its best wishes will accompany our Vols to Nashville.

CONGRATULATIONS, JOE AND LARAINÉ

Our congratulations go to Joe Hudson and Laraine Fields who led the list in two recent campus elections and won the distinction of being named Mr. and Miss UTMB.

This is the first time in the history of this school anyone has been selected to succeed herself to this coveted honor. Laraine, however, was overwhelmingly selected for the second consecutive year.

This is the first time for Joe to receive the title of Mr. UTMB. He won out in a somewhat closer race and very deservedly and graciously wears the "crown."

Congratulations, Laraine and Joe, for being selected to this honor, and to those who took the trouble to vote for two students who typify so well the best in the UTMB student body.

Campus Radio Station Proposed

A plan for establishing a student operated radio station at Martin was presented to the ASA by a group of students at the ASA's February 7 meeting.

Kellie Lowe presented the proposal for a closed circuit radio system to serve the campus buildings. The station would present music, campus bulletins, and special programs direct from the campus. It was proposed that 15 of the 20 campus buildings, including all dormitories, residence halls, and classroom buildings, be served initially.

Dean Paul Meek had stated earlier in the day, "The proposal definitely has elements of merit which should be investigated." A unanimous vote was given by the ASA to appoint a committee to investigate and forward the project.

A number of schools, military bases, and hospitals across the country already have such stations operating. Among them are UT Knoxville, Purdue University, Austin Peay, Arkansas State College in Jonesboro, and the University of Indiana in Bloomington.

It is believed by its proponents that the cost to the University of this station would be quite small and its service value immeasurable. The proposal is now under consideration by the University administration.

All who are interested in the project are asked to report to Administration 112 at 7:30 Wednesday, February 15.

Sorority Coeds Rack Up Grades

Sorority coeds at the University of Tennessee last quarter posted a higher grade average than that made by all UT women students—and by the entire student body.

Grade averages released by Dean of Students Ralph E. Dunford show that members of the 13 sororities on the Knoxville campus compiled a 2.42 average out of a possible 4.0, a sizable margin over the 2.30 grade average posted by all women students enrolled.

The overall average for the University—including the 1,401 fraternity men and 860 sorority members—was 2.17 for the Fall Quarter.

The fraternity average was 1.99 as compared with the 2.04 average posted by all men students enrolled.

Heading the list of sororities with the highest grade average was Kappa Delta, with a 2.59. Alpha Delta Pi, Phi Mu, Pi Beta Phi, and Alpha Xi Delta were among the top runners-up in sorority competition.

The highest fraternity average—2.48—was compiled by Farm House, an agriculture fraternity established at UT two years ago. Other top competitors in the fraternity ranks were Phi Gamma Delta, Sigma Chi, Kappa Alpha, and Alpha Tau Omega.

UTMB Farm Grosses $100,000 - Ain't Hay

By LAFAYETTE GRAHAM, Jr.

Did you know that in 1960 there were one and one-half million eggs produced on the UTMB farm? To visualize just how many eggs that is, imagine that if these eggs were placed end-to-end, they would form a line extending 54 miles in length, or approximately from here to Jackson.

Many of us probably never notice, take any interest in, or at least are not acquainted with, just what takes place on the college farm here at UTMB. To many the activities of the men and equipment, the presence of the poultry houses, the orchards and the livestock, are insignificant and commonplace. Perhaps, after I give you some figures and details, and I hope arouse your interest, you will realize just how important and significant the UTMB farm is.

Also, did you know that there were 437,183 pounds of milk produced by the UTMB dairy herd in 1960? This amounts to 50,835 gallons, or enough milk to supply every student on the campus a quart per day for 180 days.

If these figures haven't impressed you, then let me give you one which we can all understand—money. Did you know that the gross income of the UTMB farm in 1960 was almost $100,000, or one-tenth of a million dollars? I think that we will all agree that an enterprise of this capacity deserves more than just a casual mention. It is a big business and deserves recognition as such.

We might even go so bold as to compare the UTMB farm to a business corporation with a president, vice-presidents, board of executives, and an administrative department. If so, we must give credit where it is due and place J. E. McMahan, head of the Agriculture department, as president, with Earl Knepp, professor of agricultural engineering, and Harry Henderson, farm manager, as vice-presidents, and the remaining members of the Agriculture department faculty as executives. I'll flatter the remaining regular employees and part-time student employees, such as myself, and say that we are the administrative department. Regardless of what anyone is called, everyone who worked on or with the farm had a part in making 1960 the farm's most successful year in history.

Here is another item that I believe will arouse your interest. The UTMB farm, under the supervision of Mr. McMahan, is one of a very few state college farms in the entire United States that is on a self-sustaining basis. You may say that a college farm isn't supposed to make money, that it should be set up for experimentation only. Well, think of it this way. Without any appropriations coming in, how can the farm continue to grow and improve each year unless it pays its own way? UTMB is growing as a college, and so, the farm must grow with it. Without any help, we would soon have no farm if it were not kept on a money-making basis.

How is it that the UTMB farm can continue to grow and improve when many people are bleakly broadcasting that there is no money to be made farming? The answer is simply good management. Let me give just two examples to illustrate this.

First, of the one and one-half million eggs produced by the 6700 hens, 88% of them were produced from August to January, the months when egg prices are highest and profits are greatest.

Second, of the 437,183 pounds of milk produced by the dairy herd, 60% of this milk came during the cold, winter months when milk prices are also highest. During the fall and winter months, most herds are on low production and the farmer who can keep his production high will reap rich dividends in profits.

These examples, which I have just given, emphasize the management practices which our agricultural economists teach. Though these practices are profitable and look good on paper, in actual practice they are very hard to achieve. When you see management actually in practice, you can be sure that the organization involved is showing a profit.

The UTMB farm carries on a diversified program. In addition to the dairy herd and poultry flock, the farm has income throughout the year from the beef herd, the swine herd, the orchards, the nursery and other horticultural crops. The grain and forage crops produced on the farm are not sold, but instead are used for livestock feed.

To use an economic term which will emphasize the UTMB farm's diversity, we might say that the farm practices hedging to a certain extent. Instead of putting all the eggs in one basket, as the old saying goes, Mr. McMahan believes in having several enterprises, each of which can counter-balance a possible loss from another.

The UTMB farm is a growing enterprise. The most significant growth on the farm during the last five years has been made by the beef herd. To be exact, income from the beef herd has increased $6,000 per year over the 1955 figure. In the past, the size of the beef herd has not been in true proportion to the other enterprises of the farm and measures have been taken to bring in new numbers and increase the herd size enough to balance the other enterprises.

Also growing are the incomes from the dairy herd and chicken flock, each of which have increased by $2,000 per year. The dairy herd has shown a 58% increase in milk production over the 1955 figure. This was not due to a large increase in cow numbers, but, instead, it was due to selective breeding, culling, and the introduction of new purebred breeding stock into the herd. Incidentally, the purchase of the registered Holsteins for the herd has given the students of agriculture a new breed to study in their dairy courses here at UTMB.

While not the leader in cash income, the horticultural crops on the farm certainly deserve mention. For instance, the mainstay of the horticultural products, peaches, brought in cash receipts of $6,300 in 1960. (Students out of the peach orchards; they're valuable property.) The tomato crop—only one-third of an acre was planted—brought $1,200.

Yes, the UTMB farm is an important, even vital, asset to the college and also to the surrounding area. Farmers of this area gain information from observing the versatility and efficiency of the farm's operation. Students of agriculture, by working on the farm and observing its management, can take these practical applications of good management back home and, perhaps, improve their own farm management practices.

The diversified program on the UTMB farm breeds optimism. If frost kills the peach crop, there's still the poultry; if the egg market drops, well, maybe the price of milk will rise; or if the hog market falls, then, surely cattle prices will stay high. But, if prices stay high for all the farm products, the weather and other variable factors are good, then look out for another record-breaking year in 1961, as was the case in 1960.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Miss Mary Farrar
Editor of the Vquette
University of Tennessee
Martin, Tennessee
Dear Miss Farrar

I would like to say thanks to you and your excellent editorial staff for sending a copy of The Vquette to each member of the Trimble Senior Class and to compliment you on a job well done.

They read The Vquette and discussed some of the articles in class and out of class. They especially enjoyed the articles by Mr. Shankle, Mr. Halladay, Miss Alexander, Mr. Hicks, Mr. Smith, Miss Field, Mr. Todd and Mr. Baker.

A little explanation by students sometimes is more helpful than a lot of explanation by teachers.

Yours truly
W. E. Batts
Senior Class Sponsor

Dear Editor:

The student radio station recently proposed for Martin would not only be great for the listening students, but for those on the sending end too.

Many people will be needed for announcers, copy-writers, newscasters, sportscasters, and program directors. Each of which promises all the excitement an dfun one could desire. WVOL will provide jazz, classical music, and all the other things that just aren't heard on the air anymore.

People are needed now to help get WVOL off the ground. If you can picture yourself as a dick-jockey, newscaster, or a reliable "girl-friday", be sure to be at the meeting Wednesday night, Feb. 15, at 7:30 in Ad. 112.

Trustees Predict UTMB's Growth

UT Martin will continue to enjoy a great degree of growth and development in the years immediately ahead, university trustees predicted at the annual faculty dinner Saturday night, February 4.

The dinner was held at the university cafeteria under the sponsorship of the Faculty Women's Club.

Three members of the Martin Branch Committee of U-T and their wives—Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Fisher, Dresden; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Raulston, South Pittsburg; and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Elam, Union City—were special guests. All three trustees spoke of the two new degree programs in business administration and liberal arts to be introduced this fall.

Mrs. James C. Henson, president of the Faculty Women's Club, presided, and Dean Paul Meek served as toastmaster.

Mrs. Ann Brinley and James Mr. Henson led group singing. C. Henson entertained the group with vocal numbers.

There is no substitute for character in making a man and no substitute for experience in developing worthwhile character.

Concert Program Scores Big Hit

By MELBA WHITEHEAD
An enthusiastic audience brought Irene Callaway and Peter Harrower back for five curtain calls including two encores at the concert Friday night, February 4.

Miss Callaway, soprano, and Mr. Harrower, bass-baritone, appeared in the Music-Drama Building as performers on the Mutual Concert Series.

Mr. David Strivender, pianist, gave an outstanding performance as he accompanied the man and wife. The two sang a collection of classical pieces in foreign tongues. After intermission the songs were American folk songs and American art songs. This gave an excellent variety and balance to the program.

Miss Callaway, a native of Arkansas, was beautiful and her voice was more than adequate. Her personality, charm and radiance were revealed in each song she sang.

Mr. Harrower, who was born in Atlanta, Ga., showed unusual sensitivity in his vivid interpretation of the numbers he sang. His first songs were rendered in a very colorful, dark and brooding style. Then he shifted into a lighter mood as he sang of maidens in the garden and joined Miss Callaway in their treatment of "I tre tamburi," the story of a king's daughter who wished to marry a drummer boy.

Mr. Harrower's spirited eyes and mischievous smile made his "gambling" songs very American.

Mr. Strivender proved himself to be a virtuoso in his own right. His treatment of the accompaniments enhanced the vocal numbers and provided the exact background. His mastery of his art was fully portrayed when the lights went out during the final number, "Bless, You Is My Woman Now." His music was heard through the darkness. It was triumphant and seemed perfect.

The performing group made an outstanding contribution as a part of the Concert Series. In casual conversation afterward, Mr. Robert Stewart, music instructor, commented he thought this was one of the best concerts we have had here. Miss Harriet Fulton, head of the Music Department, said that she thought Mr. Harrower would go places. We can look for him in "big name" performances.

Who First Said: Be My Valentine

By CAROLYN BURCH
The most romantic time of the year is here on the UTMB Campus — Valentine's Day. What does Valentine's Day mean to you? To most girls it means a big box of candy, a valentine card, or a pretty bracelet. For a boy it is a time he can show a girl how much he thinks of her.
Do you know where the custom of celebrating Valentine's Day came from? It was handed down from the Roman festival, Lupercalis, which was celebrated in honor of a Christian martyr, Saint Valentine. During this festival young women would place their names in a box and the men would draw a name from the box. The young girl was immediately showered with gifts from her young man.
The custom of giving gifts on Valentine's Day has been handed down through the years and is still a custom today.
Even a careful automobile driver will sometimes meet with danger—it's a good rule to expect the other man to be careless.

Alpha Gams Visit Knoxville

The men of the Martin Colony of Alpha Gamma Rho journeyed to Knoxville the weekend of February 11 to confer with fraternity officials and observe the operation of an active chapter. Most of the actives and several pledges made the trip.

According to Billy Branch, secretary of the colony, this visit to the Knoxville chapter is part of an overall endeavor to learn more about Alpha Gamma Rho and promote association between chapters.

"We were encouraged by the attitude of the officials of the fraternity," said G. G. Crenshaw, treasurer of the group. "They talked over some of our problems with us and gave us a lot of advice that will be helpful to us in becoming a national chapter."

The AGR's are engaged in a number of activities this quarter. They had a social January 20 and are planning another for March 11. One of their major projects for the quarter is the training of a pledge class. They have initiated a study hall in an effort to raise the scholastic standing of actives and pledges.

"We were real proud of Amanda Lashlee, our entry in the Beauty Review," said Stanley Miller. "This is our first opportunity to sponsor a candidate in the review, and we are real pleased that Amanda did so well."

Liberal Arts Club Hears Lecture On Folkways

By JIM PAYNE

A slender curl of smoke, from some unknown source, rises from the beautiful hills of East Tennessee and an old man sits carving a wooden figure of a chicken, a pig, or a horse from the scenes he loves so dearly.

Seems like this were quite vividly portrayed to members of the Liberal Arts Club in their regular meeting Monday night, February 6. Their guest speaker was Miss Aaltje Vandenburg who narrated in connection with the lovely slides she has taken in and around Gatlinburg.

Miss Vandenburg commented on the contemporary and mountaineer art and crafts displayed at the many Craftsman's Fair circles to which she has contributed and which she has attended in the Smoky Mountains of east Tennessee. One point stressed by Miss Vandenburg was that the mountain folk fashion beautiful crafts from the everyday, common scenes and happenings with which they are familiar. Unbelievable beauty in the simple things greatly impressed members of the club who showed their approval and enjoyment to Miss Vandenburg as they expressed their appreciation to her and invited her to return soon as their guest.

This meeting was well attended and one among the best programs the Club has had this year. The next meeting of the Club will feature another good program and at this time, plans for the annual spring banquet will be announced. President Jim Payne urged those present to attend all meetings of the Club, "for," he said, "an interest in the activity of your curriculum is of basic importance in college."

Radio Station On Campus Needed

By NELSON SHANKLE

We are a growing university. In the space of a few years, we have grown from a handful to well over a thousand students. This enlargement, along with its benefits, has brought problems, and one of these problems is communications between students and between faculty and student.

At the present time, only three methods are available for getting information made known, mail box notices, posters, and The Volette. The first two methods are inadequate because they require a great deal of time and duplication of effort. And they still may not accomplish the desired purpose if a person doesn't check his mail box or if the posters happen to be so placed that he doesn't see them. The Volette, while serving a definite need, is not adequate for the provision of current news, and announcements of immediate importance to students and faculty. Something more is needed.

This "something else" is a proposed radio station here on the campus of UTMB. This radio station would supplement existing means of communications and make possible instantaneous communication between students and faculty. Just imagine the convenience of hearing announcements of club meetings, parties, etc. on the air, the convenience of the post office in not having to print and distribute mail-box notices, and what better way to advertise a dance or a spaghetti supper than over the radio? In addition to the advantages of a radio station in communication, one could hear music — music of the type one never seems able to find on commercial stations — "on the spot" coverage of UTMB sports events, and discussions of topics of vital importance to students.

This is within our grasp. The major items of expense are already available, broadcasting studios and the wiring system. The station will be picked up on a standard broadcast AM radio, so there will be no expense on the listener's end. The only capital required to get a radio station on the air on UTMB campus will be for control room equipment like turntables, microphones, and an amplifier, and a basic collection of records. The cost of these items will be negligible when compared to the benefits such a radio station would provide.

The proposal has been taken before both the All Students Association and Dean Paul Meek. The All Students Association voted unanimously in favor of the proposal and appointed a committee to study the proposal and test student reaction to the idea. Dean Meek said that the plan certainly has potential and is setting up a small faculty committee to study the merits of the proposal. He also approved that the proposal be voiced to find out campus sentiment on the subject. So, at this stage, all the program needs is student support to really get rolling. If you are interested in things like announcing, newscasting, sports-casting, disk jockeying, copy writing, programming, or any of the varied jobs connected with the operation of a radio station, or if you are just interested in lending your support to get the program started, come to the Administration Building, Room 112, at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, February 15, to find out more about this proposal and to get the answer to any questions you might have. See you there!

BSU News

The theme, "Dedicated Vocations," continues to be the topic at noonday this week. Men and women from various vocations are the guest speakers. Every speaker has been very inspirational and everyone is invited to come.

A revival is in progress at First Baptist Church. Rev. John Haggal, a very outstanding evangelist from Louisville, Ky., and Al and Ivy Walsh, outstanding musicians, will be in charge of the music during the week.

Miss Pitts Hughes, associate to the State Baptist Student Secretary, visited our campus last week and spoke at noonday Tuesday on Church Related Vocations.

Plans are being made for the annual BSU banquet on April 13.

Eleanor Nichols Will Save Hand

Eleanor was assisting Linda Collier in sawing a board for a BSU sign. The accident occurred about 1 p.m. in the Music Building.

She was taken immediately to Baptist Hospital where she is expected to remain about seven days.

The following story appeared in the Memphis Press-Scimitar Saturday:
A pretty co-ed's disdain for male assistance in working with an electric buzz saw almost cost her a hand.

She is Eleanor Nichols, 21, student at The University of Tennessee at Martin. She is in Baptist Hospital.

One of the males whose help she had shunned dashed out of class and gave her expert first aid to prevent a serious loss of blood by Miss Nichols after she got her hand in the way of the saw.

"See, we had to make some signs for Baptist Student Union, and we were just too independent to ask the boys to do it for us," Miss Nichols said.

She and a classmate, Miss Linda Collier, started sawing the signs Thursday afternoon. "Linda was holding the saw, and I was holding the boards," Miss Nichols said. "All at once the saw backfired or something—and there I was with my left hand in it!"

She said Nelson Shankle, a pre-medical student, heard her screams, ran out of class and applied a tourniquet to stop the bleeding. "It was really spurting before he got to me," she said.

Miss Nichols expects to be back in school soon. "But I'll leave sawing to the boys," she said.

"Me, Too," said Miss Collier.

Pritchett Scores 36 Points As Vols Wallop Florence

James Pritchett turned in the best performance of the season Feb. 2 scoring 36 points as the Vols defeated Florence State 87-76 in Martin.

The game was nip and tuck all during the first half of play. No more than two points separated the teams at any time. Pritchett scored 18 in the first half. Norman Gher and Roger Shore had eight apiece in the first half. Shore had his best night of the season as he capably substituted at forward. The score at intermission stood 40-40.

The game was again tied at 42-42 when the Vols pulled out behind the sharpshooting of Buddy Viniard and Jim Swope. Joe Hudson and Norman Gher pulled down nine rebounds each using the fast break to further harass the Lions.

Vols In Jackson Tuesday Night

U. T. Martin's basketball team travels to Jackson for a game with Lambuth College tonight.

The Vols defeated Lambuth 82-70 January 23 in Martin. They hope to get back on the victory road against the revenge-minded Lambuth team. In their previous encounter Lambuth had a well balanced scoring attack with five players scoring in the double figure column. Jim Johns, Tom Burse, and Bob Welch have been consistent all season for the Eagles.

UTMB's 6'7" center, James Pritchett, recently turned in his best showing of the season against Florence State scoring 36 points.

Last week the NAIA listed Norman Gher, UTMB Vol forward, in first place in the nation in small colleges and universities in field goal shooting. Pritchett has also been listed in this rating system. Dave Walker, Vol guard, was listed in 17th place in free throw shooting.

The Vols end their regular season Saturday night against VSAC foe Belmont College in a game at Martin.

Probable starters are:

Catalog Copy Is Sent To Printers

The new 1962 UTMB catalog has been sent to the printers, according to Gene Stanford, bursar.

Thirteen thousand copies will be printed. This is the largest number of catalogs ever to be issued by UTMB.

The 1962 catalog will be 20 pages larger than the previous issue because it will contain a description of the new courses being offered in the two new degree programs, Business Administration and Liberal Arts.

The names of the students in the back will be omitted. Only the names of the graduates and those on the honor roll will be included.

Approximately the same number of pictures will be used as was used in the 1961 issue.

The cover will be Orange and White with a new design.

The catalog will contain the calendar of activities for 1962. (For a preview of this calendar, see the editorial page in this issue of the Volette).

The first shipment of copies will possibly be returned from the Rich Printing Company in Nashville by mid-April. Mr. Stanford said.

UTMB's ROTC Team Beats MSC

The ROTC rifle team won another shoulder-to-shoulder match last Saturday. They defeated Murray State by a team score of 1300 to 1272 in a match fired on the UTMB campus.

The U. T. Martin team coached by Sgt. Harry Ganstine has compiled a fine record this year. They are undefeated in shoulder-to-shoulder competition with a 3-0 mark and stand 18-6 in postal scores.

UTMB's high scorer in the match was Arthur Goss with 264. Frank Finley was high for Murray State with 272. Grafton Dodd, a UTMB freshman, fired an outstanding 94 in the kneeling position.

A return match is scheduled for next Saturday on the Murray State campus.

Honor System Is Working At U-V.

The honor system is one of the glories of the University of Virginia. Reading back at least as far as the Civil War, it is based on the development of an unwritten gentleman's agreement that life is a good deal easier for everybody when lying, cheating, and stealing are simply not countenanced. The system works to near-perfection.

Professors put quizzes on the board and then retire to their offices, their homes, or the golf course. In fact, students are offended when on occasion a new professor stays in the room while a test is being taken.

Rooms along the lawn are left unlocked and a student thinks nothing of leaving his money or valuables in his dormitory.

UTMB Student Injured In Crash

Tommy Waggener, 18, of 104 N. Broadway and UTMB student was released from the Weakley County Hospital Monday following treatment for cuts around the left eye and throat.

Waggener was seriously injured when his car went out of control on the curve in front of Professor J. S. McManis' house and struck a light pole. He was taken to the Weakley County Hospital, where he received eight stitches around his left eye and five on his throat.

Carey Weldon, 18, of Fulton Highway, a passenger, received only minor bruises.

According to Weldon the accident occurred about 1 a. m. on the morning of Feb. 3. Waggener turned off the Union City Highway and headed south on the road by the ABL building. When he approached the curve his right front wheel went off the pavement and he lost control of the car and struck a light pole.

The light pole was split about eight feet from the ground. Waggener was driving a 1957 Pontiac which was a total loss.

Prior to this accident one man was injured and two others shaken up in a three-car collision at the entrance to Freeman Hall. The cars were also driven by three UTMB students.

Vols Lose Tough One To Govs

UTMB's Vols lost a hard fought game to conference leading Austin Peay Saturday night 95 to 88.

The win was a revenge for the Governors since UTMB broke their string of home court victories at 21 earlier in the season.

The game was close during the first half which saw both teams ahead several times. However, at halftime Austin Peay was ahead 58-50.

The Vols came back strong at halftime to put the score at 59-58 after three minutes of play. The Governors then slipped out front led by Jim Beshears who hit for 30 points in the game. Beshears hit 14 of 16 times at the free throw line.

In the December 5 game at Austin Peay the Gov's set UTMB's season record for the fewest free throws by an opponent with 12. They hit for 31 Saturday night.

With an 8-1 conference record Austin Peay is assured of the first place spot in the VSAC's Western Division. However, the conference champion is decided by a tournament in Nashville later this month.

James Pritchett was high man for the Vols with 24 points. Guards Jim Swope and Buddy Viniard both collected 14. Dave Walker and Norman Gher had 13 and 12 respectively.

Tarzan's Days In Africa Are Cut Short By Events

"It looks like Tarzan's days are numbered, not to mention those of Jane and Cheeta.

"Old age is, of course, creeping up on him. (He was conceived by Edgar Rice Burroughs 47 years ago.) But worse yet, swinging vines, lions, wild tribes and natives who still say 'Bwana' are at a premium these days what with all the civilization that's invaded Africa lately.

"Backward tribes have suddenly become important instruments in the cold war. New constitutions, flags, and national anthems are as common today as Tarzan's well-known 'jungle cry' was yesterday.

"And, with such important personalities and groups as Kasavubu, Lumumba, Nubutu, Hammarskjold, the UN, Russia and the U.S. playing diplomatic football over Africa on the world's front pages, it's only natural that Tarzan should be getting the slight on the inside comic strip pages.

"But that's all right. Civilization has arrived in Africa, or rather, has gripped the continent by the throat.

There's not going to be any monkey business about it, either. For example, look at the Congo, which the Belgians left in such a political rush. There's no slow process of civilizing the natives to Western ways, no evolutionary governments, no thought for a practical future or stable present, no worry about the diversified cultures, traditions, dialects and peoples or the need for transition from a 'backward' nation to an educated one.

"Yesirree, hurry up and give 'em civilization—and it had better be our kind of civilization, too.

"No dawdling! Some of the natives might miss the benefits—the white man's physical diseases as well as those of his mind like mass hysteria, narrow mindedness, diplomatic doublecross and nationalism, nationalism, nationalism.

"There's no doubt about it. Tarzan is certainly on the skids. He's even got a bad reputation in Russia. Just recently C. M. Smirnov, deputy chairman of the Soviet Supreme Court, gave a speech on juvenile delinquency in Russia and blamed Tarzan for in falls from trees.

hurting themselves in falls. "Pretty soon he'll be getting the same treatment here, and he certainly can't be happy in Africa these days with no more vines, no more jungle, no more monkeys — just civilization."

PHI SIG NEWS

Of much interest at the fraternity house is the completion of the basement floor. The basement floor was poured Saturday, February 4, and after several days, the basement was ready for a chapter room and a recreation center.

The following Wednesday the chapter held a formal meeting with plans being made for the purchase of additional furniture and the re-wiring of the basement.

Saturday, February 4, a team of Phi Sigs in connection with the Martin Junior Chamber of Commerce set up a road block on the Sharon highway and collected money for the March of Dimes. This was the third year that the fraternity had helped with the drive and this year's collections were the largest ever.

Upcoming on the Phi Sig calendar is the completion of the winter quarter pledge training and a formal ritual the middle of next month. Another bid day in March will be the Founder's Day Banquet. For this occasion, alumni from this part of the state will be invited to visit the house during the day and to attend the banquet that night.

The Phi Sigs would like to congratulate the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority and the Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority for becoming the newest Greek letter organizations on the campus. We feel that the formation of additional fraternities and sororities will be an intangible asset to the campus effecting both school spirit and inter-campus relations.

The activeness of the three fraternities and the three sororities and the possibility of an Inter-Greek Council will lead to a higher degree of campus activities and the annihilation of all uncertainties that such organizations seem to be infested with when they are being formed.

David Lipscomb made their homecoming complete by beating the Vols 82-65 in Nashville, Feb. 4.

UTMB had defeated the Bisons earlier in the season 62-57 in Martin.

The VSAC game saw the top contending Lipscomb 5 pull out during the second half to win by a sizeable margin.

Larry Peterson was the game's high scorer with 23 points. James Pritchett had 19 for the Vols.

Although losing the Vols saw good play in Jim Swope and Buddy Viniard who tallied 11 and 10 respectively. Bob Dawe and Larry Powers got seven apiece.
